- More and more people are moving into towns and cities to live and work, altering the urban/rural balance of countries worldwide
- The Endless City is an unparalleled study of the growth of six of the World's international cities (New York, Shanghai, London, Mexico City, Johannesburg and Berlin), exploring key structural, economic and social factors
- Overseen by the influential educational institution, the London School of Economics (LSE)
- Features extensive research and coherent texts by world-renowned professionals in the field
- The information is presented in a comprehensive and visually compelling sequence, enabling quick and efficient reference as well as offering material that is exciting to study
- Each city is studied individually in its own chapter and examined comparatively in an observational chapter
- Authoritatively edited by Ricky Burdett and Deyan Sudjic in collaboration with LSE and The Urban Age Project, an expanding international organisation seeking a new urban agenda for global cities

Deyan Sudjic is director of the Design Museum, London and a former Dean of the Faculty of Art, Design and Architecture at Kingston University. He was previously editor of Blueprint and Domus magazines, and Director of 'Glasgow 1999: UK City of Architecture and Design' and the Venice Architectural Biennale 2002. Former architecture critic for the Observer, he has written several books, including The 100 Mile City (1992), and John Pawson: Themes and Projects, John Pawson Works and Future Systems, published by Phaidon. Ricky Burdett is Director of the Urban Age and Centennial Professor in Architecture and Urbanism at the LSE. He is an adviser on architecture to the Mayor of London, the BBC and Tate Organisations, and is the Chief Adviser on Architecture and Urbanism to the London Olympic Delivery Authority. He was also Director of the tenth Venice Architectural Biennale.
