- Chronicles the controversial life of Michelangelo Merisi da Caravaggio (1571–1610), and offers the most penetrating analysis of his art available
- Illustrates all of Caravaggio's works in full colour, from his sexually provocative nude figures to the dramatic compositions and lighting of his religious paintings
- The author uses recent archival research and technical investigation to produce the most up-to-date and accurate study available
- An appendix of documents dating back to the sixteenth century positions Caravaggio in the context of his time

Catherine Puglisi is Associate Professor of Art History at Rutgers University, New Jersey.
